We express our huge debt of gratitude to the Honorable Chief Minister of Tripura, Shri Manik Sarkar, for his kind support in the preparation of the Second Tripura Human Development Report. Under the adept stewardship of the Chief Secretary as well as the Principal Secretary to the Chief Minister's Office, numerous members of several line departments of the Government of Tripura have extended full cooperation to our project by giving us time to answer our queries in the midst of their busy schedule, by generously providing us with relevant facts and figures and above all by sharing their thoughts and insights with us on the promises and challenges of human development in the state of Tripura. It is in the light of their wit and wisdom that we have endeavoured to prepare this document. We remain most grateful to all of them. It is our great pleasure to convey special thanks to Shri Anindya Kumar Bhattacharya and Shri Susanta Debbarma of the Government of Tripura; without their sustained and solid assistance this report would not have been possible. Illuminating comments on part of several elected political functionaries at all levels of governance as well as other political leaders in the state have enriched our understanding of the issue of human well-being in the state for which we remain very grateful to them. In the preparation of this report we have greatly benefitted from the active participation of several members of the academic faculty at Tripura University at workshops organized during the course of preparing this report and from their incisive comments and suggestions. We acknowledge our intellectual debt to Professor Achin Chakraborty and Professor Jean Dreze for their kind advice in the preparation of some of the key chapters in the report. We express our sincere thanks to Dr. Abhijit Chowdhury who has helped Pratichi Institute in many different ways in the preparation of this report. The Pratichi research team works under the intellectual guidance and inspiration of Professor Amartya Sen, and is steered by the able leadership of Ms Antara Dev Sen, the Managing Trustee of Pratichi (India) Trust. The study team remains most grateful to her for her continued encouragement and support toward all its research activities, including this project. We express our special thanks to Ms Anwesha Rana for her editorial assistance in the preparation of this report. Finally, we acknowledge, with a great sense of humility and sincerity, our special debt to the local field investigators in Tripura as well as our respondents in the state whose voice and vitality resonate through the pages of this report.
